Kids stuff

Kids club started last week in the pouring rain and we still had a stack of kids there. This looks like a ministry that is really going to start to boom. One of my biggest roles is mentoring the leaders in leaders meetings, as language hinders me doing a lot of upfront stuff during the club. Enthusiasm is still a great gift from God and is very catchy. Please pray every Wednesday for this important ministry to the children of this town.

Rhani Wade from Tassie who lives with me is going back home in a couple weeks time. One of the things he was doing was teaching Sunday School. Due to a shortage of people this week, I taught the second half of Sunday School without a translator. It was rather comical if not frustrating. I had to call upon a wide strategy of management strategies. There are a lot of kids here just seeking love and acceptance. We can give that to a degree but we want them to ultimately find it in Jesus.

Team USA

On Friday we have a team from the US arriving for 6 days to help with some friendship evangelism. They will be billeted with members from our church (I'll probably have one or two at my place). We plan on spending a lot of time at the beach and around town meeting and inviting young people to the centre for programs on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights. I will be quite involved in the running of these programs. I'd appreciate your prayers in not getting too exhausted.

Electricity

The power went off last week and my fridge decided not to come back on. It's fixed now but we had to throw out all the meat in the freezer. Just one of those annoying things.

I have to go to Kiev to buy decent meat, so will probably make the trip this week before the team arrives.

40 Days of Purpose

I have started reading this book. Please pray that over these next few weeks I will be fully open to God working in me to help refine me more into His image. Actually I feel a little stuck on the first chapter. "Life is not about me." I know this in my head but my life is so easily egocentric.

Youth Group

Last week I spent two evenings at different young people's places. There is a great caring community developing amongst some of those who have trusted in Jesus. Please pray that this grows beyond the group.

Dan has written some little bios on some of the youth along with pictures to help pray for them. I'll post it to the website so just follow the links below. One example is Tamara. A young Christian herself she is keen to grow and also have her friends find Jesus also. She has brought along 3 friends a few times already. Please pray that Dana, Christina and Olya also find Jesus through Tamara's witness.
